Submission	The COVID-19 pandemic has lessened the economic capacity of some in the Indonesian population, including students of Airlangga University (UNAIR). The university immediately responded to this situation by utilizing UNAIR Cybercampus, providing financial aid for students in order to simplify the process. By utilizing the web-based applications, students can propose a remission of tuition fees in a timely and efficient manner without making any physical contact, in accordance with the health protocols. This financial system can also be accessed by multiple units to reduce the need for inter-unit interactions which can lengthen the process. This online application for tuition remission has been used by thousands of students, and indeed 76% of the total number of students received this assistance in the past year.
