THE Awards 2019 – University of the Year

Institution/Nominee	Harper Adams University
Submission	The world of food production is changing, and Harper Adams has been leading the way. UK agri-food systems face some of the biggest impacts from Brexit, so we have provided advice to Government Departments, brought in senior politicians and provided our students with national and international insights on the challenges ahead. Our international reach was renewed and extended with a variety of collaborations covering five continents. Working with the Department for International Trade and industry partners, we are building the capacity for UK agri-tech and agri-food expertise to feature in new international trade arrangements and in promoting inward investment opportunities to boost the UK economy. Coupled with consistently outstanding institutional performance, including a second Gold TEF award and the opening up of new fields of academic enquiry, we continue to push back the boundaries of our specialist field, and provide outstanding graduates, to address the challenge of securing global food security.
