THE Awards 2019 – Outstanding Technician of the Year

Institution/Nominee	Clare Stevenson, John Innes Centre
Submission	As a highly skilled technician in Protein Crystallography and Biophysical Analysis, Clare brings benefits to students and postdocs at JIC, and to scientists across the Norwich Research Park. With numerous published papers, scientific presentations and her running of formal training courses (as well as a few dance classes during staff wellbeing week...!!), Clare has impacted on a wide range of projects and people. In addition to her technical role, Clare founded the local Technician Voice, and subsequently led the institute as it became one of the founding signatories of the Technician Commitment. She has built on this through external collaborations with universities and institutes, and was responsible for submitting the Technician Commitment self-assessment and action plan, for which she received excellent feedback. Clare cares about the technician community, is passionate about her own development and inspires others to be proactive in their own careers. Her commitment makes her a worthy nominee for this award.
